Their Easy Action

REXALL Orderlies are a common sense remedy for bowel disorders. Easy in action, they do not purge, gripe, nauseate or cause excessive looseness.

They tend to tone and strengthen the delicate intestinal nerves and muscles, promptly relieve constipation and help to overcome its cause and make its recurrence improbable. In these things they differ from old-fashioned, harsh, disagreeable physic, which usually gives only temporary relief and often leaves the bowels in worse condition than ever.

We particularly recommend REXALL Orderlies for delicate and aged persons and for children. In vest-pocket size tin boxes, 12 tablets, 10c; 36 tablets, 25c; 80 tablets, 50c. Usual dose one tablet.

THE THEATERS

The great comedy success, "Baby Mine," is booked for presentation here April 2 at the Robinson Grand, under the direction of William A. Brady, Ltd.

"Baby Mine" is the work of Margaret Mayo and is a new witness to woman's playcraft and, what is more, to woman's sense of humor. The idea of "Baby Mine" is simple but its working out is highly ingenious and diverting. Its appeal is universal and irresistible. It will soon be seen in Paris, Berlin, Vienna and St. Petersburg, and negotiations are under way for its production in South America, South Africa, Australia and Japan.

The company presenting "The Newlyweds and Their Baby" that will be seen at the Robinson Grand Monday, March 31, is a large and able one including in its number many comedians and vocalists whose names are synonymous with prosperity and success. Their abilities are taxed to the utmost in the presentation of the whirlwind funny scenes that develop the story of the diminutive baby whose wondrous talents are the admiration of its doting parents and the world-at-large. Many delightful musical numbers enliven the piece and prove pleasing breaks in the general mixup of mirth and characterizes the play from beginning to end. The chorus is an especially chosen one, picked not alone for its goods looks but also with a view to their ability to sing and dance, and they can do this with vengeance.

The most interesting plays produced in recent years are those which have been made from popular novels. One became interested in reading a book and the characters at times seem as living, breathing friends. It is, therefore, easy to understand how, after having followed the adventures of a popular hero or heroine of fiction and having been taken into the confidence of these personages that one should have a desire to meet them, as it were, face to face.

It is perhaps not too much to say that George Barr McCutcheon's story, "Brewster's Millions" has had as many, if not more readers than any American work of fiction recently published. It is, therefore, natural that the combined armies of fiction readers and theatergoers will look forward to the appearance of Walter Allen in Frederick Thompson's superb production of this celebrated story at the Robinson Grand, Saturday, March 29.

The title of "Bunty Pulls the Strings," which will be offered Saturday, April 5 at the Robinson Grand, arises from the fact that Bunty solves all domestic entanglements that occur during the course of the comedy; in other words, she pulls the strings. Bunty is the daughter of a Scotch village grocer. Bunty's father, Timmas Biggar, is being induced to marry one Susie Simpson, who, years before, gave Tammas some money to invest for her, but he used it to pay off his son's debts instead. At the same time there appears Helen Dunlop, to whom Tammas was engaged to be married. Bunty, who has a love affair of her own, now steps in and straightens out the complications. The entire action takes place in two days, one of which is a doleful Scotch Sabbath.

The eagerly awaited local engagement of Mr. Louis Mann is definitely announced, arrangements just having been successfully concluded whereby this popular character actor will be seen at the Robinson Grand Wednesday evening, April 9 for one performance only. Since Mr. Mann's lengthy runs in New York and in Chicago in his present vehicle, "Elevating a Husband," inquiries as late this afternoon. Starting from the People's store on West Pike street, where he placed a subject in a hypnotic sleep at noon, he drove a team of spirited horses to another section of the city, where a committee of local persons had concealed several articles, and found them with ease. The feat astonished the hundreds of persons who witnessed it. The subject who was placed in a hypnotic sleep in the show window will be awakened tonight on the stage of the theater. Popular prices prevail at the performances and large houses are expected.

As an added attraction at the Victoria the first three days of this week the management is offering J. K. Murray and Clara Lane, in their musical act entitled "Fixing Dad." Every theatergoer in the country will remember these two clever performers for their part in the well known grand opera company of William J. Carlton.

Victor Herbert's success with "The Enchantress" his greatest operetta which comes to the Robinson Grand Tuesday, April 8, has awakened managers to a realization of the popularity of light opera in contradistinction to the old forms of musical comedy and farce. Indeed so pronounced is the change of sentiment in New York that Mr. Herbert at a meeting of composers recently declared the day of musical comedy would pass, as did the day of burlesque.

"America," said he, "is coming into a light music of its own—a music fresh and full of vitality, yet with a style and refinement that will make it as artistically alluring as European music. We are passing through the innocuous period of musical comedies, which has been merely a transition from the burlesque into a genuine comic opera. Already the newer and more refined influence is making itself felt in the box office receipts—usually the surest test in matters of entertainment—and the composers are turning to operettas with real plots and a real theme and style."

The Buster Minstrel Maids opened at the Odeon this afternoon to a packed house, and from the enthusiastic applause given each number, the show has "caught on." The ends are well taken and the singing is far above the average. The young ladies are traveling with a chaperone and are well taken care of. It is a big show for a small price. Ten cents to all parts of the house.

Prof. Galvani, the hypnotist and mind reader who will give demonstrations of his great psychic power tonight and tomorrow night at the Robinson Grand, gave his celebrated blindfolded carriage ride performance through the streets of the city

MILLINERY TALENT IN CAPITAL SOCIETY

Viscountess D'Arz. Viscountess D'Arz, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth and Miss Alys Meyer were voted the expert society milliners of the national capital after their beautifully trimmed hats were exhibited and sold for fancy prices to the smart set at the recent hat show of the Children's Country Home in Washington.

It was agreed that the picture hats trimmed by Viscountess D'Arz surpassed the most French creation of the shops. In addition to making these hats the viscountess was on hand to try them on her customers and saw that each customer had the proper

Not a Single West Virginian Yet Appointed by New Administration.

(Special to the Telegram.) WASHINGTON, Mar. 24.—West Virginia seems to have been overlooked by the Democrats in the disposition of the federal patronage under the new administration. President Wilson's vote was given to Mr. Wilson weeks and has had absolute control of the executive branch of the government during that time, and yet not a Democrat from West Virginia has been appointed to any office in that time.

During the last campaign when the election of Woodrow Wilson to the presidency seemed certain the Democrats of West Virginia were permitted to believe that after Wilson became the head of the new government it would be a clear case of turning out Republicans and making offices for the Democrats. Whether it be the threats of a Democratic tariff policy or a general lack of confidence in a Democratic administration or whatever else the cause may be, there is a large number of Democrats in West Virginia who are relying upon public office for their support in the next few years. At no time in the history of the republic has there been such pressure brought to bear upon the heads of the different departments for office as there has been since the last election. This is particularly true of West Virginia and thousands of applicants in the mountain state are eagerly awaiting their attachment to the pay roll of Uncle Sam.

So far there has been no indication that any of these Democratic patriots are to be rewarded for their services by having their names placed on the public pay roll. It even appears at the present time that John W. Davis, of Clarksburg, one of the most eminent and popular Democrats in the state is to be refused the appointment as judge of the United States circuit court to succeed Judge Goff when he resigns to become senator. Congressman Davis has the very strongest endorsements one could expect to have not only from West Virginia, but from others outside the state. But a South Carolina judge seems to have the support of those who are nearest to the attorney general and the president, and it looks now as though he would get the appointment rather than Mr. Davis.

If men of the character and standing of Congressman Davis and with such endorsements as have been given to him are to fail in the matter of appointments it would seem that there would be little hope left for any West Virginian who may desire a federal office. Notwithstanding the fact that West Virginia's electoral vote was cast for Woodrow Wilson, the president and the heads of his administration seem to have forgotten that West Virginia is on the political map, and are scattering their offices in other parts of the country.

Probably West Virginia will yet get something but the outlook for satisfying the hungry thousands who are clamoring for positions of different kinds is not good at the present time. It looks very much as though the president and his advisors do not consider West Virginia a Democratic state in spite of the fact that the election has been in office for nearly three last fall.

QUESTION CLEARED UP... Clarksborg Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence.

Again and again we have read of strangers in distant towns who have been cured by this or that medicine. But Clarksborg's pertinent question has always been: "Has anyone here in Clarksborg been cured?" The word of a stranger living a hundred miles away may be true, but it cannot have the same weight with us as the word of our own citizens, whom we know and respect, and whose evidence we can so easily prove.

J. H. Stephenson, Supt. Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., 366 Lincoln Ave., Clarksborg, W. Va., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills in my family with satisfactory results. They brought me immediate relief and are worthy of endorsement."
